

ARTHUR BEHRENS WILL COACH MASK AND RAPIER PLAYERS THIS SEASON

Georgetown Faculty Member
To Aid Mr. Hopkins On Part Time Basis

Mr. Arthur Behrens, a member of the faculty of Georgetown University, has been secured as dramatic coach for the Mask and Rapier Society this year. The services of Mr. Behrens, who will aid Mr. Vincent C. Hopkins, S.J., on a part time basis, have been obtained through the courtesy of Father Grattan, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Georgetown.

Thirty-Six Years Experience
The new director is a nephew of the late Robert Mantell, and has had thirty-six years experience in acting and in directing both stock companies and collegiate dramatic societies. Mr. Behrens has toured the country with Mantell, and was a member of the first English stock company to play in South America.

Director at St. Joseph's
From 1934 to 1937, Mr. Behrens coached and wrote plays for the Cap and Bells Club of St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia. During that time, St. Joseph's won every dramatic contest they entered, carrying off the trophy in the Jesuit Intercollegiate Contest three years in succession. At Georgetown last year, he produced a series of successful one-act plays, among which was the popular Amaco by Martin Flavin. Mr. Behrens will be on hand in the near future, when he will call for try-outs.

Powers Elected President
Preparatory to Mr. Behrens' coming, the Mask and Rapiers held an election of officers on Tuesday, September 27. Samuel Powers was elected president, with Ned Stevenson vice-president, John Farrell secretary, and Frederick Aumann, treasurer.

Tentative Schedule Cited
Following the formal ballot, Mr. Behrens gave a tentative outline of the year's dramatic activities. First on the list is a one-act comedy, Nettie, by George Ade, to be presented on "Loyola Night" in December.

Play Contests
Besides the annual full length production, usually staged in February, the Loyola players hope to arrange for a one-act play contest with Notre Dame of Maryland, and a similar event between Loyola, Mount St. Mary's, and St. Joseph's.

Frosh Welcoming Dance In Library Tonight

Earl Simpson's Orchestra
Signed For Opening
Dance of Season

The Loyola social season will swing into an auspicious opening this evening, October 7, when the freshman welcoming dance gets under way. This annual jamboree, which is the upperclassmen's official greeting to the lowly Frosh, is expected to draw a large attendance.

In past years this affair has been one of the most delightful on the calendar. The sponsors of this year's "clam bake," the junior class, have promised it will be no exception and back up this claim with the reassuring statement—"absolutely no corn."

Earl Simpson's Band
The dance committee, headed by James A. Maguire, have signed Earl Simpson's orchestra for the affair in an effort to please both the "jitterbugs" and the followers of sweet rhythm. The dance will be semi-formal. It will be held in the school library, which will be fittingly decorated for the occasion. The downbeat is scheduled for 9 p.m. Subscription is one dollar and a half a couple. Tickets may be obtained from any junior.

CLASSES ELECT OFFICERS

Seniors Return Last Year's
Officials To Power

With most of Loyola's extra-curricular activities well under way, all classes except freshmen have selected their officers for the coming year. The seniors reinstalled last year's officials: Bernard J. O'Neill, president; Charles M. Connor, vice-president; Samuel J. Powers, secretary, and Ned Stevenson, curator of funds.

Maguire Heads Juniors
The juniors chose James A. Maguire to lead them during their all important year. His assistant is John D. White. Philip A. D'Ambrogi was chosen secretary and Frederick C. Aumann, treasurer.

Pups Beware
Paul F. O'Day, the sophomores' choice for president, went into office with the cry "Down with the Pups" on his lips. James J. McGuirk, vice-president, will aid him in keeping the freshmen in their place. As secretary, John A. Farrell will diligently keep check of

MASS OF HOLY GHOST OPENS NEW SCHOOL YEAR

Prizes Awarded During Initial
Student Assembly In Library
School Regulations Cited

The current scholastic year was officially opened with the celebration of the Mass of the Holy Ghost by Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., newly appointed president of Loyola. The traditional annual ceremony took place on Monday, September 26, in the college library.

Father Bunn Speaks
The short sermon which directly followed the Mass was given by Father Bunn. He emphasized the point that one of the important aims of Catholic college education was to inculcate in the student a proper sense of values, which would serve as his guide in all his actions and undertakings in college and for the remainder of his life.

First Student Assembly
Following a short recess, the first student assembly of the year was held, with Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S.J., Dean of studies, as the main speaker. In the name of the faculty he extended a welcome to the upperclassmen returning to Evergreen, and a hearty wish to the freshman class that their stay at Loyola would be pleasant and successful, despite the sophomores. Rules and regulations of a scholastic and disciplinary nature were given, after which the present seniors, juniors, and sophomores received awards for highest grades attained during the last year.

Father Bunn Introduced
When the long procession of prize winners had received their medals and premiums, Father Gorman made the long awaited official introduction of Father Bunn to the students. As the new president arose, a prolonged wave of applause resounded in the library. When the acclaim had subsided, Father Bunn spoke a few words of warm greeting to the assembled students and generously declared classes off for the rest of the day.

Prize Winners
Prizes for the year '37-'38 were awarded as follows:
The Murphy gold medal for Religion, to Charles P. Crimy, '39.
The Myers gold medal for Philosophy and the Carroll gold medal for Biology, to L. Edward Hooper, '39.
The McTavish gold medal for Physics, to Henry F. Zangara, '39.

Father Bunn's Inauguration Scheduled For Oct. 20

Father Gannon Of Fordham
To Install New President

Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., will be formally installed as president of Loyola College, by Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., president of Fordham University, at a public inauguration on Thursday, October 20th, at 8 p.m. Archbishop Michael J. Curley will preside at the ceremony, which will be attended by students, alumni and the public.

Inaugural Address
Father Bunn will give an inaugural address. Honorary degrees will be presented to selected leaders in the various professions who will be present. Many delegates from neighboring colleges and universities and representatives of numerous educational societies and associations are expected to attend. Musical selections for the occasion are to be supplied by the Green and Gray glee club under the direction of Rev. Augustus M. Fremgen, S. J.

NEWS BRIEFS

Three new courses are being offered at the college for the current year. Mr. Vincent C. Hopkins, S.J., is conducting a course in advanced Latin. A course in elementary Greek is being given by Mr. Paul G. Harkins, S.J. Mr. Charles H. Harry, Professor of mathematics, is conducting a special class in Statistics in connection with the regular math course.

FATHER EDWARD B. BUNN, S. J. SUCCEEDS FATHER CANNING AS PRESIDENT OF LOYOLA

Will Supervise Largest Group of Students In
History of College

Students registering at Evergreen this fall, the largest group in the history of the college, discovered several important faculty changes which were effected during the summer months. First to come to the attention of the undergraduates was the appointment of the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., as president. Father Bunn comes to Loyola from Fordham University where he was assistant to the late Rev. Walter G. Summers, S.J., chairman of the graduate school of psychology.

Registration up 44 Per Cent
Since freshman registration continued the gains which have been noted in the last few years, Father Bunn will supervise the largest student body in the history of the college. The frosh enrollment has increased about 44% over last year. This brings the student total to 330, which is 35% greater than last year's figure.

Father Canning in New York
The Rev. Joseph A. Canning, S.J., whom Father Bunn succeeds, is now Father Minister at St. Ignatius' Church in New York City. Father Canning served Loyola for four years, and was responsible for a great many of the improvements that have been made at Evergreen during the last few years.

Father Beglan Leaves
In the philosophy department, the Rev. Ferdinand H. Schoberg, S.J., has taken the place of the Rev. Joseph F. Beglan, S.J., professor of psychology and senior apologetics. Father Beglan, in charge of the philosophy department for several years, has been transferred to Canisius College in Buffalo, where he will continue to teach psychology.

Father Bunn Baltimorean
Both Father Bunn and Father Schoberg are Baltimoreans. They attended Holy Cross parochial school, were graduated from Loyola High, received their bachelor's degree from Loyola in 1917, and were ordained together fourteen years later.

Noted Seismologist
The new chairman of the physics department, the Rev. John P. Delaney, S.J., is nationally known for his work

Along The Lane

By GEORGE SMITH

Well, another journalistic year rolls around like the liker in the belly of the souse in the ferris wheel, and so here is your funny mans again. For your convenience reading directions and a bottle of smelling salts are included with every column. As a general guide, I may say that the corn on this plot will be arranged in rows reading from left to right. In order to relieve freshman anxiety, I feel called upon to announce that this column is strictly an elective. And that is where my trouble lies. What I need is a Hitler to assure me readers—and laughing readers at that. Heil Smith!!!

Sport News: The latest advocate of the huddle system is Sir Neville Chamberlain. He finds that he is quite good at it. He will go all kinds of places just to go into a huddle. These are huddlesome times (I apologize). Sir Neville aint particular who he huddles with either. Nein, Herr!! He is trying to book huddles with the emir of Turkestan, the bishop of Pimlico, and Intrenched Greed. Especially Intrenched Greed. Yum, yum.

Hanging in the Balance, or Strictly from Hunger!—Howard Yakel, sophomore spokesman, made a flying visit to freshman headquarters last week, and took the college totally unawares. He was closeted with freshman dignitaries for several hours. On his emergence he would say little beyond the fact that the conference had been encouraging and then broke down, and confessed that the freshmen had decided not to haze the sophomores. What sanctions Mr. Yakel threatened in order to wring concessions from the belligerent, multitudinous Frosh, it is difficult to say. Commentators expressed the belief that though the sophomores were immersed in a sea of troubles, they would probably "paddle" their way out.

Just too, too ducky!—The duck spent the summer putting on weight and adding to his stature. But the dumb-bell hasn't decided what courses he's going to take (the quack). He seems such a sarcastic duck, but consider, there isn't much to life at Loyola for a duck. The duck hasn't made a single friend outside of the prefect of discipline, and he can't show a dislike for the duck because it was given to him. You see the Reverend Moderator's line of reasoning. After all, you can't look a gift duck in the mouth. Treat the duck well and you have a contented duck; a contented duck is a fat duck; a fat duck is meat on the table—and Thanksgiving ain't so far off!

Cold Spring Murmurings

By NED STEVENSON

Hello, Hello. Hello! Well, that takes care of three of you, anyway.

While all our columnists have been fighting feverishly to get their war talk into print, we alone have held our peace and remain calm and collected, though we must admit that we haven't collected much. But what we have is as brilliant as it is brief, and you will probably not find our pertinent remark in any other newsrag. So read it NOW.

What we can't understand is the base ingratitude of some people—Hitler, for instance. Where would Hitler be if it weren't for Europe?

SUDETEN DILEMMA

I think I'll quit the battle-fieldAnd go home to my wife.Better by far to the tyrant yieldThan be dead for the rest of my life!

In view of the present popularity of a certain cowboy song in this country, we would not be surprised to learn that Der Fuehrer has changed the German national anthem "Deutschland Ueber Alles" to "Heil Ho, Hitler, Heil Ho!"

If you've heard strange quacking sounds emanating from the alcove of the library building, accompanied by gnashings of teeth from the faculty house (probably just a false rumor), said vulgar noises are not made by any senior, nor even by any freshman, but by the fowlest creature on the campus. . .

THE WEIGHTY QUESTION

OR

WILL IT BE FAT BY THANKSGIVING?

Though our boys are known as Greyhounds,Our mascot is a duck!But at heart they're really prey hounds—He'd better keep his web feet crossed!

At the general assembly last week the Dean recklessly invited criticism of conditions at Loyola, and with equal abandon and doubtful cordiality suggested that the boys drop into his office (we suspect a trap) and discuss how conditions might be improved. In our customary spirit of co-operation we submit the following:

Offhand we would say that the trouble with conditions is, there are too damn many of 'em!

Then there is the cafeteria. What this college cafeteria needs is a good five-cent glass of beer.

And napkins! My mother is getting sick and tired of transferring the mustard from my suits to my sandwiches. Think of the wear and tear on the mustard! In fact, things have come to such a pretty pass that my mother has offered to personally spread the mustard on my suit when she packs my lunch, thus eliminating the middle man.

And while we are constructively criticizing we should like to call somebody's attention to the dearth of mirth in current humor magazines. We've combed them all and found nothing suitable for successful plagiarism. It's a hell of a note when a guy has to create a column with his bare hands. It's uncivilized!

To our humble lot falls the enviable pleasure of extending a sincere welcome—a greeting voiced from the heart of every student—to Loyola's new president. There is double reason for our well wishing on this occasion, because Father Bunn's coming is also a returning. As he has been literally schooled in the Loyola traditions, we have no trepidation in assuming that the successes which have accompanied him thus far will grow and multiply while he is with us. We eagerly pledge ourselves to the furtherance of these hopes.

As a vestige of his efforts during his four year sojourn, the retiring rector, Rev. Joseph A. Canning, S.J., leaves a larger student body, a beautified campus, added athletic facilities and numerous other improvements of which Evergreen can proudly boast. Father Canning performed his task well. He takes along with him our ardent desires for continued success.

Why Evergreen?

We have a record registration this year and that is cause for rejoicing. But the new freshman class is to be reminded that mere numbers will never be an indication of Loyola's worth. Whether there be few students or many, the advantages of Evergreen are as they have always been.

The development of the man of culture and the imparting of a balanced sense of values are still Loyola's primary objectives. In pursuance of these ends, it continues to uphold the liberal arts, defend literature and philosophy as the principal instruments of true education, and reject all systems which will produce only the "practical man." During the most plastic period of a young man's life, our college has chosen to give us something more than a mere mechanical knack.

Evergreen is especially qualified for this accomplishment. A small college, it can take its time because in its scheme of things the attainment of culture is no over-night process. With a limited number of students, it makes possible the associations and friendships whose influence is incalculable. In the unusually attractive surroundings, Minerva is given a very suitable abode.

If environment is a paramount factor in the slow process of cultural evolution and daily contacts of a superior kind are the chief elements which consolidate such growth, Loyola has a twofold boon to offer that is priceless and far more precious than any material gain.

Hail, New-comers!

Though the sophomores have, by this time, made you feel well at home—at least they have made you feel better at home than in the gym, we wish to give you editorially our own "Welcome to Evergreen." We are glad to have you here, and we are confident that you are already proud of Loyola. Your job now is to make Loyola proud of you, and you have only four years in which to accomplish this end.

It is up to you to pack these four years full of every kind of endeavor. Work in the classroom is on your calendar, of course. But put there also work on the diamond or work on the court; work on the stage or work on the rostrum; mayhap, work on the 'Hound staff.

In The Dog House

WITH DAN LODEN

KIBITZING ALREADY:

At the time of this our first appearance of the season, we find athletic activities here at Loyola lining up as numerous as jitterbugs around a nickelodeon. With the appointment of "Lefty" Reitz as director of athletics, we witness one of our pet hopes realized. This column has always believed that the conducting of athletics, including intra-murals, was a full-time job, and that only by making it such could stability and functioning power be added to any worthwhile program. In other words, we're happy about the whole darn thing. And, as usual, we just can't resist shooting over a couple of suggestions of our own. Since indoor basketball and badminton are apparently due for a flourishing existence, why stop there? Why not utilize the super-abundance of space in the gym for the introduction of several other sports? At present the gym is as bare as a sun-bather. A few mats will make wrestling possible, and it is very probable that with the aid of some parallel bars and other paraphernalia we could develop a tribe of gymnasts. However, these are mere suggestions, and if the financial powers that be wish to sue us they'll have to catch us first. At this point, not because we want to get back into favor after our attack on the school budget but because we sincerely mean it, we congratulate Father Jacobs, who is retiring as athletic director, on the swell job he has done in stirring up interest in athletics around the school. Father Jacobs worked hard for Loyola sports despite the demand of more important offices. How about a duck dinner, Father?

OF MEN AND MASCOTS:

If you should happen to read on the sports page of THE GREYHOUND that Smith bounced off the wall, skimmed over the net and sank a foul to tie the score, you may be sure you are following the antics of one who is trying to fathom the mysteries of our two new combination handball, basketball and tennis courts. These engineering masterpieces are located behind the gym and have won instant popularity. In fact, the number of steinlike figures seen capering about the concrete is edifying. The total of pounds lost would outweigh an elephant. Credit for the erection of the courts likewise belongs to Father (bring 'em back alive) Jacobs, who is also responsible for the presence on the campus of the new college mascot, that rare specimen of winged life, the duck, "Helen Waddle."

VARSITY NOTES:

Varsity prospects for at least two sports are promising. Both the basketball and lacrosse teams can expect strong recruits from the incoming freshmen. Basketball has long been entrenched as a favorite sport at the college, and not a few of the stirring incidents in the annals of Maryland quint history concern Loyola athletes. This year will be an outstanding one for our court squad, provided Coach Reitz can find men to replace Wayson, Bremer and Kelly, who were lost by graduation. However, Stakem, Barczak, Keech, Cummings and Clancy should form the nucleus of a fine squad, and there is plenty of talent from last year's Jayvee and the present freshmen for "Lefty" to draw on. The lacrosse team lost no players through graduation, and can expect a full squad back for fall practice. They too will be strengthened by freshman additions. The schedules of the two sports will bring Loyola in contact with such institutions as Villanova, Georgetown, Washington and Lee, North Carolina and others.

BRETHREN, HEED!

We wish to put in another plug for an increased interest in athletics among the students. The facilities of the school are ample and are at the disposal of each and every Loyola man. "Lefty" Reitz will be in his office in the gym at all times, and will be ready to do as much as is in his power to answer your needs. Your school life is exactly what you make it. It can become more enjoyable through the realization that college does not consist merely in attending classes. Get interested in one or more sports and make use of the fine gymnasium we are fortunate enough to possess. In a month you will be surprised that you can navigate stairs, breathe out of both lungs, and that your lumbago is gone forever. Who knows but that you may be able to play a hot game of bridge without puffing? Anyway, give it a try.

Reitz Made Athletic Director Of All Loyola Sports

Intra-mural Baseball League And Tennis Tournament Under Way

As announced at the beginning of the school term, Emil (Lefty) Reitz, former Holy Cross football and baseball star and coach of last year's Varsity basketball squad, has been appointed director of all athletics at Loyola. Mr. Reitz will personally supervise all intra-mural sports as well as continue to function as mentor of the court squad.

Large Intra-mural Schedule

Already an optimistic schedule of inter-class competition has been drawn up. The various divisions will battle in basketball, badminton, softball, tennis and other sports. By the time this edition of the GREYHOUND goes to press the tennis tournament will have already gotten under way. Seedings have been announced, with "Big Walt" Cummings heading the list. Following Cummings is Knell and, in the order named, Thaler, L. Quinn, J. Russell, Shaffner, Rector and Burch. Thaler, number three man, comes to the tournament with an impressive record of victories on the municipal courts and will be the freshman dark horse of the match play.

Softball Program

By this time, also, the intra-mural softball league should be in full swing. There will be twelve clubs representing the different classes and the race promises to be a close one. The junior "A" club, sophomore champions of last year will, undoubtedly, be the target for the other teams to demolish if they hope to cop the honors. Probably the greatest threat to the third year men would be the senior "A" club, which threatens to produce a solid group of sluggers and alert ball handlers. Medals will be awarded, as in previous years, to the victors in the tennis tournament and the softball league.

FENCING NEWS

Edward Dill, who is serving in the dual capacity of Captain and student Coach of the Loyola Fencing squad, has been holding daily workouts for some time, in preparation for their meetings with the foremost teams in the East. The outfit has expanded to a full three-weapon team. This includes foil, saber, and épée, while in all of last year's contests only the foil and saber form of fighting was used.

One Regular Gone

Joe Newby is the only regular lost to the team by graduation. The returning veterans, besides Ed Dill, are Johnny Gleim, Bob Giblin, Norman Gallagher, Harry Schultz, Jack Franz, Guy Kagey, Lou Scholz, and E. Caesar Balland. Freshman

FALL LACROSSE PRACTICE

Will Be Out Until October To Prime For Spring Card

No, this isn't taken from an issue of last April, neither has lacrosse been transformed into a fall sport. It's just that Jack Kelly and his Green and Grey stickmen decided to get the jump on a few of the other schools by inaugurating a rigid fall practice season, instead of waiting for the spring to roll around.

Face A Stiff Schedule

But why all this sudden commotion about a comparatively new sport? Well, the first reason becomes apparent after a brief glance at the 1939 schedule, which includes Westchester Teachers, Washington and Lee, University of Toronto, Syracuse, and C. C. N.Y., besides most of last year's opponents. Secondly, the Evergreen stickers, in the sophomore year of their existence, are determined to show Loyola, as well as their rivals, that their 1938 record was more than the proverbial flash in the pan.

New System of Play

This season Coach Kelly is introducing an entirely new system of play. Because of this, and because of the keen competition last year for regular berths, Jack was prompted to declare that, although not a single man was lost by graduation, no position on the team is by any means cinched. He plans to have the boys (veterans and 28 new recruits) out four days a week up until the last of October, when practice will be discontinued until next March.

Navy, Georgetown, Villanova Among Opponents Team Will Encounter

Loyola vs. Catholic U.! Loyola vs. Villanova! Loyola vs. Georgetown! Loyola vs. Navy!

It's been quite a number of years since students, alumni and fans of Loyola College were able to look forward to such red-letter events as these for the approaching basketball season. And it's been just as long since the Greyhound basketballers had such a stiff schedule staring them in the face. For, besides the regular Maryland Collegiate League games, the lineup includes teams of such calibre as Hudson College, Seton Hall, Wittenberg, and Marshall. Nevertheless, among the higher athletic authorities, a general feeling of optimism seems to prevail.

Promising New Material

The departure via graduation of Captain Charlie Wayson, Joe Kelly, and Harry Bremer leaves a large-size cavity in last year's starting quintet. The remaining two, Tommy Stakem and Captain-elect Eddie Barczak, will form the nucleus around which the team will be shaped. Possible fillings for the aforementioned cavity emanate from three sources. Returning veterans of considerable varsity experience are Joe Keech, entering his fourth year of competition, Walt Cummings, and Joe Clancy, the latter two having seen much action for the past two seasons. Then, there is a promising Jayvee squad rising up to smite down all who might hinder them in their path toward a first-string berth. Finally, there are the incoming freshmen, many of them high school stars in their own right, sufficient to warm the hearts of the most pessimistic of coaches. To mention a few, there are Vernon Cox and Fred Tobe, mainstays of Southern High's scholastic title-holders; Vic Bock, captain and high scorer of the runner-up Calvert Hall quint; Price Jacobson and Bill Kenney, stars at Towson and Loyola High respectively; and Jack McLaughlin, a sophomore, who has transferred from Georgetown.

"Lefty" Again At Helm

There is one other item to consider, possibly more important than all the rest. Coach Emil (Lefty) Reitz will again be at the helm, which, in itself, is enough to instill confidence into any student body. A top-flight basketballer himself, "Lefty" has not only the knack of imparting his unlimited knowledge to his charges, but also the ability to imbue his winning spirit into the squad.

Father Love at Georgetown

The Rev. Thomas J. Love, S.J., who headed the physics department at Evergreen for nearly ten years, has been transferred to Georgetown. Father Love was known and admired by the hundreds of Loyola students who came into contact with him, both as professor and as Faculty Adviser to the Alumni Association.

New Faculty Posts

Three faculty posts were created during the summer months. Mr. James A. Cawley, S.J., from Weston College, Massachusetts, has been made assistant professor of chemistry. Mr. David J. Theatre Comment

BY PAUL SCHAUB

(Continued from Page 3, Col. 1) The Lane sisters are a dewy lot, if there ever was one, and if there are any Lane brothers, they certainly have all our envy.

Boys Town had to be good because its star was Spencer Tracy, one of Hollywood's lonely claims to fame. Father Edward Flanagan, the originator of the Nebraska Boys-town and a graduate of Mt. St. Mary's College in Emmitsburg, has cause to be proud of the screen presentation of his admirable project. The picture contains many healthy sociological lessons and very capably interprets the true spirit of his work. Mr. Tracy again proves that in the art of histrionics he has very few peers, but Mickey Rooney gives a colossal exhibition of overacting. Although the script is consistently sluggish, on the whole Boys Town is another exception to Hollywood's accustomed puerility.

significance. We understand that the one hundred great books have as their major criterion of greatness the fact that they "raise the persistent unanswerable questions about the great themes in European thought." Such a negative standard isn't very acceptable. Viewed in that light, we will have Aquinas and Schopenhauer, Augustine and Marx, Bonaventure and Hobbes, Roger Bacon and Charles Darwin, all joining hand in hand to raise a host of questions that can never be answered. But doesn't such a conflict leave the St. John's graduate pretty much in a turmoil? After he has ventured to recover the great tradition of the West, it must be discouraging to find it only a hodge-podge of contradictions and a gigantic question-mark. All of which makes some definite objective norm essential, if the St. John's library is to be more than a colossal potpourri. When we run the gamut from Homer's mythical pantheon down to Freud's sexual psychoanalysis, there must be some hierarchy of truth according to which every credo can be evaluated. But the students at St. John's must study Christ and Calvin with equal indifference.

At Loyola we consider ourselves in possession of that hierarchy of truth which we call Christianity. That is our tradition of the West and in it we find the answer to the questions which St. John's leaves unsettled. Without attempting a sermon, we argue that the tradition of the West is either the Summa Theologica or else it is the Leviathan. By no manner of means, is it both. It is Dante or it is Rabelais; Augustine or Voltaire; the Old Testament or the Origin of Species. We can't agree that such violent opposites can be included under the all-embracing encomium of "great books." So when the gentlemen of St. John's speak of "the arts of apprehending, understanding and knowing the truth," they provide a very disappointing bathos when they give no indication of where the truth resides in that labyrinth of European thought represented in their new curriculum.

Unless there is some positive answer to that puzzle, this new program seems distorted and aimless; which makes us conclude that, down along Annapolis way, the mountains again appear to be in labor, and whether the little mouse is again to be produced, remains for the future to determine. Whatever be the result, the educators of St. John's are to be congratulated on their valor and their optimism.
